

TEACHER PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Lunch and Learn Executive Functioning Skills

Please join Heather Tellier for a 3 hour Professional Development workshop at The College of New Jersey:

Executive Functioning Skills

Executive functioning skills are essential to navigating the world, but are frequently overlooked by educators. These skills allow a child to manage many tasks at a time, focus attention and plan out tasks, all of which are needed to be successful in school and in life. This also leads to positive behavior and healthy choices as they get older. This workshop will discuss the areas of executive functioning and how to teach these essential skills.

Heather Tellier M.S., LDT/C (Assistant Director) has been working with students who have special needs for 20 years. She began her career in upstate New York as a resource room teacher and then continued teaching in different states including Arizona, California and Connecticut. She received her LDT/C certificate from the College of New Jersey and worked as a case manager for many years. She is now the Assistant Director of the TCNJ Literacy Advancement Project. Part time, she works at Princeton Charter School as a Case manager and LDT/C and travels around New Jersey to provide professional development to districts. Heather is also part of the adjunct faculty at TCNJ teaching reading and special education courses.
